Three Faiths Share In Work To Remove Bias

A ten-year campaign sponsored by educational leaders representing Protestant, Catholic and Jewish groups has proved successful in eliminating from the public, private and parochial school textbooks of the United States virtually all passages regarded as biased from the standpoint of race or religion.

Clergymen and educators, working quietly, have succeeded in changing the approach toward racial and religious questions taken by textbook writers and publishers. This has been done by agreeing upon and pointing out the existence of anti-Catholic, anti-Protestant or anti-Jewish passages. Now almost no complaints are raised concerning public textbooks, and few regarding the private or parochial books.

Parallel with the program to improve the public school textbooks has been an extended program to improve the texts used in religious education. For several years the National Conference has been conducting various types of activity to promote intercultural education with Protestant, Catholic and Jewish groups.

Under the direction of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the campaign to eliminate offensive passages from textbooks began at Drew Theological Seminary. A committee of educational authorities, under the direction of Dr. J. V. Thompson of Drew studied school materials used in Protestant church schools to discover passages conducive to prejudice and intolerance. The committee aimed to confine its elimination most of the passages that might be [illegible]

[illegible] Good Course? of Religious Education, and the American Jewish Committee cooperated in the work.

The Rev. Dr. Willard Johnson, assistant to the president of the National Conference, who was assigned to the textbook program, pointed out that in some instances the process of correction had been slow, but that it was still taking place.

Anti-Catholic and anti-Semitic references are now virtually non-existent. However, Dr. Johnson admitted, anti-Negro bias is still present. Even there steady progress is being made.

Under the direction of the Synagogue Council of America 300 Jewish volumes have been surveyed critically for any anti-Christian bias. Seventy passages have been removed or revised. The committee in charge of this work will continue its program to foster understanding between Jews and Christians.

"Authoritative Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders are giving careful attention to their educational materials not only to see that offensive passages are removed, but to build appreciation and mutual respect," Dr. Johnson pointed out.

"No one concedes that the job is completed. Some teachers of each group are biased and will continue to prejudice the children under their direction. Some intolerant passages and books are still in use, but the trend is unmistakable. Seeds of good will are now being sown and the harvest in abundance will soon be reaped. Given such good will, mutual respect and cooperation, no problems of the post-war world will be too great for American democracy to solve."

So fruitful has the National Conference campaign been that the textbooks used in the schools of America are now generally free from prejudice-creating material, according to Dr. Johnson. Agencies which were set up to resolve

"We've gone beyond the stage of picking out passages here and there which may be anti-this-or-that," Dr. Johnson said. "American educators are now involved in the major task of developing the materials and methods which will foster intergroup good will and respect. The job is being done by experienced and capable people and organizations."

Funds for the ten-year program have been supplied by educational foundations. The National Conference also has been allocating a major portion of its funds for this project.

Working with the National Conference in eliminating biased passages and developing constructive textual materials are the Service Bureau for Intercultural Education, the Educational Policies Commission, the Progressive Education Association, the National Education Association, the National Catholic Education Association, the Council Against Intolerance and the American Jewish Committee.

"Education for democracy has taken great forward strides in the last ten years," Dr. Johnson com-

JEWISH FAMILY HAS SEVEN SONS IN U.S. ARMY

Mr. and Mrs. Max Lieberman, of Manistique, Mich., could put almost an army of their own into the field against the Axis. They have seven sons in service.

Lined up, according to rank, the Lieberman standard-bearers are Louis, 29, Air Force captain; James, 26, Air Force lieutenant; Ben, 23, Army lieutenant; Sam, 27, corporal; Peter, 21, private first class; Herman, 28, private, and Morris, 19, aviation cadet.

A daughter, Rose, is a War Department employee at Milwaukee, while the other two children, Harold, 18, and Evelyn, 13, are in high school.

Mr. Lieberman is proud of his sons, but their departure disrupted his once profitable broom-manufacturing business. Unable to get help, he sold out and put the money into war bonds.

Church Opposes Nazis On Behalf Of Jews

All Jewish converts to Catholicism in Holland were deported in reprisal for intervention by the Catholic clergy on behalf of the Jews. This was an aftermath of a united protest on July 11 to Reichskommissar Dr. Seyss-Inquart, by the Catholic hierarchy and the representatives of the Protestant communions against anti-Jewish restrictions and deportations, says Religious News Service in the New York Times.

In Belgium, also, church leaders are suffering for their opposition to Nazism, which is being fought with all the combined spiritual resources of the church. It is a common custom for Roman Catholics and Protestants to offer prayers for their Jewish fellow-citizens. In a suburb of Antwerp, a Protestant vicar recently appealed to his congregation to pray every day for "the persecuted and tortured Jewish brethren."

Late in 1942 the Nazis arrested a priest in the near-by township of Den Horst, who had invited his congregation to pray for the Jewish citizens of Belgium, "who are being murdered and persecuted by the enemies of the Belgian people." Another priest was executed for giving shelter to 100 Jewish children in defiance of anti-Semitic decrees.

The resistance of the Norwegian church is well known. The church, following the example of its leader, Bishop Eivind Berggrav, now under house arrest, has spurned every inducement or threat to ally itself with the Nazi-sponsored regime headed by Premier Vidkun Quisling.

In a New Year's message read

Church Council boldly declared that it is still fighting Nazism and intimated it would do so to the end. The council called upon congregations to "stand firm" and urged prayers for clergymen in exile or in prison, and for persecuted Jews.

The Provisional Church Council had previously sent a vigorous protest to Premier Quisling against the persecution of Norwegian Jews, a move in which it was joined by affiliated church organizations and theological societies.

"By keeping silent while this legalized unfairness against the Jews continues, we ourselves become a responsible accessory to its continuance," the protest said. "If we remain true to the word of God and the confession of our church, we are forced to speak out. It is the God-inspired duty of the church to express disapproval when secular authorities commit wrongs."

The Norwegian Free Church groups subsequently added their endorsement to the Lutheran leaders' protests against persecution of the Jews. Among these were the Salvation Army, the Methodist Church Mission Society, the Norwegian Sunday School Society, the Christian Student Society, the Christian Doctors Society and the Deacons Society.

The Danish Lutheran Church has, to a large extent, centered its anti-Nazi resistance on the issue of anti-Semitism. The pro-Nazi press had complained frequently of the church's dogged opposition to attempts — begun more than two years ago — to initiate anti-Jewish restrictions.

Heading the spiritual resistance throughout the country is Dr. Hal Koch, Professor of Church History in Copenhagen University. He is the leader of a coalition of Danish young people's societies, a federation whose central purpose is to resist alien ideologies and to preserve Danish freedom and independence.

The Nazi paper Faedrelandet last August severely attacked the opposition of the Christian church to anti-Semitism, especially as reflected in official Danish church organs. The attack was provoked by an article in the church gazette of Sonderborg, edited by Dean Hoffman Hoegsbro.

"Hatred of the Jews," the article said, "is prompted by the demand for a scapegoat. We will not lend our support to the introduction of anti-Jewish laws. Jew hatred is an infectious disease, to which the brute sense of justice of the Danish people will not permit them to succumb. It is a disease that

Children In Polish Sanatorium Killed By Nazis

Two hundred and fifty Jewish children, patients at the Medem Sanatorium for Jewish Workers' Children, in Miedzeszyn, near Warsaw, have been murdered by the Nazis. A report from the Jewish Labor Underground in Poland, addressed to the Foreign Representation of the General Jewish Workers' Union, relates the details.

The Medem Sanatorium, which was founded and maintained by the Jewish workers' organization of Poland, was one of the finest and most modern institutions of its kind in Poland. After the outbreak of the war and the occupation of Poland by the Nazis, it was able to carry on its work thanks to the efforts and sacrifices of its staff, giving permanent shelter to 250 workers' children. The current wave of massacres that the Nazis have launched against the Jews does not spare young or old. The children of the Medem Sanatorium have shared the tragic fate of the rest of the Jewish children in Poland.

The Nazis surrounded the sanatorium and ordered the personnel to leave the premises. The majority of the staff, foreseeing what war in store for the unfortunate children, refused to leave them in order to save their own lives. They were shot together with the children.

Similar mass murders of Jewish children have taken place in other Polish cities. In Warsaw, the Nazis murdered all the children from the Jewish orphanage, which was supervised by the famous writer and pedagogue, Janusz Korczak. Korczak, who refused to leave the children, shared their fate.

[illegible] campaign of extermination. In Mielec, a town in Galicia, the Germans collected all the able bodied Jews and shipped them to an unknown destination, presumably for work. The women, children, and old people were driven to the outskirts of the town and shot.

In Pustelnik, near Warsaw, the Nazis burned the Jews who lived there. Old people, women, children, the sick, all were destroyed. The men were herded into barracks where the Soviet prisoners of war had been kept, and later taken away, no one knows where.

During the past summer, the old Polish city of Cracow was one of the main centers of Nazi plans and activities in the Germanization drive. The Nazi Administration of the Government General resides in Cracow, and the Nazi authorities therefore expend every effort to Germanize the city and to lower the percentage of its Polish population.

An underground report, which has recently reached this country, describes the situation in Cracow as follows:

The Nazis are extremely anxious to accelerate the Germanization of Cracow. To effect this, they have instituted the mass expulsion of Poles, both Gentile and Jewish, from the city. The Germans have announced that 100,000 Poles and all the Jews would be the first to go. The Nazi office, which formerly concerned itself with finding lodgings for newly arrived Germans, was reorganized by the SA to supervise the removal of the Polish population to the right bank of the Wisla river, and beyond the city limits of Cracow. The entire central section of the city, which is then vacated, will be occupied by German families brought from the bombed German areas.

An ordinance issued by the Nazi city sheriff (Stadthauptmann), with regard to the boundaries of the Jewish residential section in Cracow, is yet another link in the chain of Nazi "activities." The ordinance reads:

"In accordance with the regulation of September 13, 1939, and subsequent supplementary ordinances, I hereby order that the Jewish residential section in the city of Cracow be restricted to the following streets, effective as of June 25, 1942, 8 a.m.:

"From the corner of Josefinska Street and Brodzinski Street to the corner of Podgorski Market; the Podgorski Market, Limanowski Street to Josefinska Street; Josefinska Street to the corner of Lwowska Street, Lwowska Street Concord Place, Na Zjezdzie to the

Propose Britain Give Refuge To Imperiled Jews

Members of the British House of Commons and House of Lords decided at a joint meeting to draft a resolution proposing that Britain give sanctuary to Jews from Nazi-occupied countries.

The resolution will assure the government "the fullest support of the House for immediate measures on the largest and most generous scale compatible with the requirements of military operations and security for providing help and temporary asylum to persons in danger of massacre who are able to leave enemy-occupied countries."

The meeting was held immediately after a session of the Commons at which Colonel Oliver Stanley, Colonial Secretary, told about the help being given by the British Government in the transfer of Jewish refugees from Europe to Palestine. Colonel Stanley said:

"Some weeks ago the Government of Palestine agreed to admit from Bulgaria 4,000 Jewish children with 500 adults to accompany them on the journey. Since then the necessary negotiations have taken place through the protecting power with Bulgaria to secure permission for their exit.

"I am glad to tell the House that these negotiations have been successful. Steps are being taken immediately to organize the necessary transport, but the practical difficulties involved are likely to be considerable.

"Arrangements were previously made to admit some 270 Jewish children from Rumania and Hungary and some are now in transit to Palestine. It has now been possible to admit further children [illegible]

"The British Government will be prepared, provided the necessary transportation facilities can be made available, to continue to admit into Palestine children with a proportion of adults up to the limits of the immigration permissible for the five-year immigration period ending March 31, 1944. The numbers involved are approximately 29,000 still available under the White Paper. The usual conditions governing immigration will have to be fulfilled."

Answering a question, Colonel Stanley said some British colonies had grave food difficulties that stood in the way of sending Jewish refugees to them while other colonies already were contributing largely to the relief of refugees.

Palestine Chosen Supply Base For War Effort

Although about $50,000,000 represents the total of capital investments by American organizations and individuals in the past two decades in Palestine's economic development, these funds have actually stimulated and guided investments from other sources so effectively as to make this country a potent supply base on a broader plane for the United Nations' war effort.

The exhortation to "cast thy bread upon waters" finds justification in this land in the sense that American investments in the past twenty years have contributed to the upbuilding of a useful structure for the use of the United States that is now increasingly associating itself with the fortunes of the Middle East, says Julian Louis Meltzer in the New York Times.

Naturally, American remittances to Palestine have been much greater in this period. They comprised over $10,000,000 more to educational and charitable enterprises conducted by both Christian and Jewish institutions, such as the American School of Oriental Research, the Y.M.C.A., the Rockefeller Museum, the Hebrew University, the Quaker Friends' Boys and Girls Schools and many small theological colleges and Jewish social welfare activities.

Something like $60,000,000 have been contributed by American Jewry to the principal Jewish bodies, like the Palestine Foundation Fund, the Jewish National Fund and the Palestine Emergency Fund.

[illegible] in twenty years.

In the first three years of war the same Jewish bodies received $18,000,000 from America, or about 43 per cent of all their income. Taking one example, the Palestine Foundation Fund received from America over 50 per cent of its entire world income of $46,000,000 over twenty years.

No beverage liquors are being made, and in order that the stocks on hand may be fairly distributed, The Quebec Liquor Commission will issue individual permits for the purchase of spirits, and will limit the amount which can be purchased each week.

WHERE TO GET YOUR PERMIT.

Permits are available to persons 20 years of age, or over, at all Quebec Liquor Commission Stores and at 905 Delorimier Street, Montreal, or at the Main Office for the Quebec district, in Quebec city, corner Dalhousie and St. André Streets, on presentation of your National Registration card. There is no charge. Permits are not transferable. Persons having neither home nor legal residence within the Province may also obtain a permit upon presentation of identification papers. The cost of this permit will be (0.50c) fifty cents.

From whatever part of the country they come, members of the armed forces of Canada are entitled to their permit free of charge.

WHAT YOUR PERMIT ALLOWS.

The holder of this permit is entitled to purchase up to forty ounces of alcohol or spirits each week. Units as described below must be used in the week for which they are dated as they become void thereafter.

HOW TO USE YOUR PERMIT.

There are three 10 oz, three 2 oz and four 1 oz units for each week. These allow you to purchase forty ounces of liquor in any combination you may desire. For instance, if you purchase a 26 oz bottle the vendor will stamp two ten-ounce units and three two-ounce units. If later in the same week you purchase a 12 oz or a 13 oz bottle the vendor will stamp all remaining units for that week. Fractions of ounces are disregarded.

MAIL ORDER PURCHASES.

Permits for ordering by mail in districts not served by The Quebec Liquor Commission Stores, can be secured from the mail order store, where you usually make your purchases. When ordering by mail, enclose your permit which will be stamped and returned with your purchase.

Sun Life Reports Progressive Year

The assets of the Sun Life of Canada, representing the combined savings of more than one million policyholders, exceeded the billion dollar mark during the past year and now amount to $1,046,962,000. The volume of new business for the period was over $200 million, and an increase over the previous year. Arthur B. Wood, President and Managing Director, commenting, in his address to policyholders, on the 72nd Annual Report released today stated that the total increase in Government bond holdings held by the Company amounted to $73 million, making a grand total investment in bonds of the United Nations of $290 millions. The growth of life assurance, said Mr. Wood, was one of the noteworthy social developments of the present century, and the truly co-operative relationship of policyholder and the Company is now generally recognized. Life assurance is essentially the people's business. It is an instrument of public service, and every policyholder is, in effect, a partner in the business. The great majority of the entire population of North America have a financial interest in the institution of life assurance either as policyholders or beneficiaries, and, day by day, benefits flow out in constant stream carrying relief and assistance in time of distress and need. This process goes on in good times and bad, whatever economic conditions may prevail. Life assurance is a form of social insurance which, for generations has proved its worth and stability, and whatever steps may be taken to promote national measures for the security of the individual in the future, the institution of life assurance will continue to perform the great public service made possible only by the sound partnership principles on which it is founded.

The total assurance in force of the Sun Life of Canada now amounts to $3,044,000,000. Payments to policyholders during the year represented an average daily disbursement of over a quarter of a million dollars each working day, or over $77½ million, bringing the total benefits distributed since organization to well over $2½ billion.

LET THE FLAME OF FAITH BURN BRIGHTLY

In history Finis' can never be set at the end of the page nor at the close of a year. The end of one chapter tells the beginning of another, the close of the old year the opening of a new. Standing within the threshold of 1943, the challenge is of the ages, a call for courage amid toil and trial and sacrifice. We look back upon a year of cloud and pain, hallowed by the death of heroes. Their valor is ransom for our future, and has opened for us the vista of triumph now stretching ahead. Let us not lose what they have bought. As we press on to victory, let the flame of our faith burn brightly. With gratitude for the past, with courage for the present, with faith for the future, let us consecrate ourselves to our task . . . to the end that torment may be lifted from man's heart and peace come for all nations and peoples.

Mutual Life Assets Gain

Up $12,237,158; Business Expands

At the annual meeting of policyholders of The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, held at Waterloo, Ont., last week, R. O. McCulloch, president, pointed out that an unusually low termination rate was in part responsible for a very substantial increase in insurance in force.

Mr. McCulloch noted an increase in death claims during 1942, as a result of war operations, and warned that when the Canadian army became involved in large scale operations, a substantial increase might unfortunately be expected.

Referring to the increasingly favorable military situation, he called for a concerted and resolute effort on the part of civilians in all walks of life to give their utmost in time and energy. Mr. McCulloch dealt at some length with the Government's revenue and price control legislation, and pointed out that it is of the greatest importance that all citizens give maximum encouragement and support to these undertakings.

W. H. Somerville, general manager, reviewing operations for the year, 1942, stated in part as follows:

"Surplus funds at December 31, 1942, aggregated $12,246,044, an increase for the year of $1,088,916. Surplus earnings for the year amounted to $4,755,887. The ratio of expense from 12.79 per cent to 12.29 per cent. During 1942 assets increased by $12,237,158 to a total of $219,699,633. Total holdings of Dominion Government and Dominion Guaranteed bonds amounted to $76,628,036. Additions to the assurance account for the year amounted to $61,954,211. Assurances in force increased by $29,102,265, to a total of $638,526,459."

Before enlisting he was employed by the Noorduyn Aircraft Co. of Montreal. His brother, Capt. Neil Fleishman, is on active service with the Canadian army.

The 346th overseas casualty list of the Canadian Active Army reports Signalman Hyman Greenberg, son of Mrs. Sonia Jampolsky, of Spedden, Alberta, as having been killed in action at Hong Kong.

R.C.A.F. authorities in Calgary announce the death of LAC Alfred Leder, 25 years of age, a Jewish student pilot in the R.A.F. from London, England, in a mid-air plane collision north of the Calgary municipal air port. LAC. Leder was buried in the cemetery of the Calgary Jewish community.

The other two members of the crew, who were also killed were P/O Phillip Duncan Corlet of Liverpool, England, and LAC. David Alex McAulay, of Ballygally, Ireland.

Although there are very many more chapters and members in the United States than in Canada, the high percentage of Canadians may be accounted for by the fact that Canada has been in the war for over three years. PALESTINE CHOSEN SUPPLY BASE FOR WAR EFFORT have American funds among capital include the Iraq Petroleum Company, the consolidated refineries at Haifa, the Palestine Potash Company, which exploits the Dead Sea minerals, the Palestine Electric Corporation and the Socony Vacuum Oil Corporation. This process of the American financial contribution has become so important that the secretary general of the Palestine Foundation Fund, Leo Herrmann, stated recently that the "United States of America holds a central position in all reviews, prospective calculations, and accounting plans both for the past, for the present war period, and most important, in all considerations for the post-war period."

First among the purely economic American instruments in guiding progress of Palestine has been the Palestine Economic Corporation of New York City. Its president, Julius Simon, of New York, is presently residing in Jerusalem.

The corporation's principal task of financial and economic pioneering and assisting an ever-increasing number of Jewish immigrants to become self-supporting has had an indirect, and in many cases, a direct bearing upon the present volume of the war effort, he said. It has facilitated a general development of industry by helping the small man build up his enterprise and it has participated in establishing basic industries. As the largest single stockholder in Palestine Potash which employs Arab and Jewish workers in equal numbers this American corporation also helped the Dead Sea works.

Mr. Simon contends that boldly conceived plans for the economic development of this part of the world must be inseparably connected with every plan for world reconstruction, since Palestine, by her favorable geographical position, will be the natural center for transit trade and expansion. It has a great reserve of scientists and specialists who, he said, have already built up important scientific and research institutions that will be found valuable in post-war industrial development.

Lieut. General Frank M. Andrews was given command of American forces operating in Iran, Irak, Egypt, Syria and Palestine.

Churchmen Ask Ban On Race Bias

A memorial requesting that he reaffirm Executive Order 8802 forbidding race discrimination in war industries and that he reconstitute the Fair Employment Practice Committee, remove it from the jurisdiction of the War Manpower Commission and reschedule the public hearings on alleged discrimination against Negroes on Southern railways that were canceled by Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, has been addressed to President Roosevelt by leading churchmen representing the major denominations throughout the country.

Announcement of the appeal to the president was made by Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Church; the Rev. John La Farge, chaplain of the Catholic Interracial Council, and Rabbi Sidney E. Goldstein of the Commission on Justice and Peace of the Central Conference on American Rabbis.

"There can be no second class economic citizenship, no ceiling of color or creed in the defense of democracy," the memorial declared, urging that the FEPC receive independent status answerable only to the Chief Executive, that it be vested with adequate powers for the enforcement of its rulings, and that public hearings be held as an essential part of its procedure.

The membership of the FEPC has been depleted by the resignations of its chairman, Malcolm S. Maclean, president of Hampton Institute; David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and Mark Ethridge, editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal, in protest against cancellation of the hearings by Mr. McNutt in the case effecting discrimination on the railways.

Remaining members of the committee are William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Phillip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; Milton P. Webster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Alderman Earl S. Dickerson of Chicago.

Three million copies of the works of Sholom Aleichem, the noted Jewish humorist, have been published in the Russian language since the founding of the Soviet Union.

Letters Of Appreciation For Institute On Judaism

Dear Rabbi Stern:

Mrs. Smith, I understand, has already written you on behalf of our United Church Professional Women's Fellowship for the very profitable evening we spent last Friday. I would like to add a personal word of appreciation for the privilege extended to us of attending the Institute and Luncheon on Monday. The atmosphere indeed was one of real fellowship.

I am glad to recall that in our own home our parents, who were devout Christians, taught us that we must think and speak of the Jews with the utmost respect because they passed down to us our religious heritage. So, like Dr. Kerr's son, it was rather a shock to us when we discovered the antagonistic attitude of a great part of the world. I was only eighteen when I became interested in the Zionist Movement and prepared a paper on my findings, which I gave to our Young People's Group. That was thirty years ago. I do remember that our Minister disagreed with me in my belief that Palestine would yet become the National Home of the Jew, but I was just thrilled over the sense I had that God was taking care of His own chosen people. That is just a touch from the past. I pray that God may bless you abundantly in the work of reconciliation you are doing. I agree with you that the people of God, by whatever name they are called, must put on a solid front against the great forces of evil. "Love is the fulfilling of the Law" is not true because Jesus said it. He uttered it because it was eternally true. You are helping us prove it in our human relationships.

Very sincerely yours,
Bessie Irwin.
(Westmount Park Church)

Dear Rabbi Stern:

I really cannot refrain from writing to express to you my deep appreciation of that inspiring day spent at the Temple yesterday! It was so worthwhile, and so well managed and thought out, but above all what remains with me is the memory of the eloquence of Dr. Marcus, his beautiful flow of language, the knowledge he imparted so wonderfully to us, the goodwill and interest shown by the visiting clergy and ladies, and behind it all the feeling of the strength of the Temple. . . .

I wish to thank you for your extremely kind invitation.

Yours sincerely,
Flora M. Steele.

Dear Dr. Stern:

It has been a very fine experience to have the benefit of the Institute on Judaism. I found Professor Marcus both stimulating and informative. . . .

Your sincere friend,
Fred W. Kerr.
(Minister, St. Andrew's Church, Westmount)

Dear Rabbi Stern:

Once again I am indebted to you for an enjoyable and profitable day. Rabbi Marcus is a most interesting speaker, and always seems to have plenty of information to impart; he strikes me as rather an expert in dissecting questions thus ensuing him to answer them in the most helpful manner for those interested. . . .

Please accept my sincere thanks for the privilege afforded me, and for your very kind hospitality, and believe me,

Sincerely yours,
John D. Ellis.

"The Great Emancipator"

Friday, February 12, is a sacred day for thinking people everywhere because it is the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. This man Lincoln, who gave all to free the Negro from slavery in the United States, now belongs to all mankind and to the ages as the great emancipator.

This present war in a way is still Lincoln's war. For, even as Lincoln demonstrated that his nation could not remain half slave and half free, so this is now true of the world at large. We are now fighting for global emancipation, the freedom of all peoples throughout the world.

The one great problem of the present is that of race relations. It should remind the white race to think seriously about our attitudes toward the Negroes especially. Interracial professions of goodwill are insufficient. Too often we suffer from inflated language concerning the equality of the coloured people. Our deeds should demonstrate our belief in fair employment practices and in the elimination of discrimination. We should abolish those disabilities which tend to reduce the Negroes to a second class citizenry.

We Jews who have been among the greatest sufferers of discrimination at the hand of majorities should be the first to espouse the cause of justice for the coloured people. These folk should have every opportunity to earn a livelihood. Negroes should not be limited to the most menial tasks. Negroes of character and ability and education should be given every chance in every field of endeavour. Negroes today are battling with all lovers of freedom that democracy may not perish from the earth. These have shown valour and courage, patriotism and loyalty.

As a Jew, I have watched with admiration the Negro bear his burden in true dignity. Despite the injustices perpetrated against him, he walks this earth without bitterness and vengefulness. On a holy day such as Lincoln's birthday, it behooves us, fellow citizens with the Negro people, to bestir ourselves as to the plight of the Negro in our democratic life.

It behooves us who are followers of God to battle that the canons of social justice as voiced by the great prophets, be kept in our dealings with the Negro as to his entitled and rightful place as a fellow human being. We rejoice that at last in a number of States in the great republic's south where the poll tax was imposed as a prerequisite for voting, that this iniquitous undemocratic practic employed against the Negro is rapidly being abolished.

In the new world order, if it be truly founded on justice and righteousness, the Negro will be entitled to a new deal, but this deal must begin to be granted him now while men of all races and creeds are fighting and dying for a reborn humanity.

Lincoln historically belongs among the great liberators of the human race along with Moses and all champions of human equality. Lincoln, like every man must today, championed equal rights that we might be deserving of victory.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Money sent by American Jews to Europe to take care of the wounds caused by the first world war amounted to about eighty million dollars and this heavy stream of gold thereafter was mentioned always in tones of awe. It was a lot of money to get together and those who contributed it had the satisfaction of feeling that it was well administered in keeping with the spirit in which it had been given. But it was only a prelude in money to what will have to be collected for the needs that are indicated by this protracted period of mourning for Jews throughout the world.

During the decade of Hitler's power the Jews on this continent contributed $74,885,285 through the United Jewish Appeal, and it may be said that in a way this is only the beginning of getting and spending. Each year, as the Nazi shadow moved from country to country, falling across people who had considered themselves safe the year before, misery and suffering spread and deepened, narrowing the areas that could relieve and rescue. With each turn of the screw, with each fall of the axe, it became plainer to the Jews of America, which means the Jews of Canada, too, that the burden of bringing aid would eventually rest almost entirely upon the communities on this side of the water. Today the gravity of the situation is such that there is almost no corner of the earth where there is not some Jewish need to be filled, making the responsibility of American Jews something of vast importance.

It must be considered a blessing and a matter for pride that American Jewry had men who could comprehend far in advance of the man in the street what tremendous scope the human tragedy would take as a result of Hitler's intentions. From the beginning of the Nazi regime these Jewish experts were aware of the full meaning of all the implications and could impart their direst expectations to groups all over the country so that Jewry could be prepared for shock, to be able to rally from it, and to close in for the practical duties that would be made inevitable. American Jewry, luckily, and tragically, was ready to engage in saving Jews from destruction because of its experience in the last war and because it had ready for operation machinery which could be set in immediate motion for bringing relief to people thousands of miles away.

Committees of foreign Jews, established twenty years ago, knew what to do and how to do it to the extent that now in locations where they have to function in secret they are still secretly functioning to get refugees across the borders. It speaks volumes that although the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee is unable to communicate with them, it knows they are at work by the results they achieve in human salvation. Let those who still question the value of trained, experienced workers in this field of social work take note and be sobered by the fact that in giving help American Jewry was not caught napping.

During the past decade of despair Jews found homes in the distant sections of the world, the total number since January 30, 1933, being 750,000. About 125,000 went to South America; 200,000 to the United States; 305,000 to Palestine; and others elsewhere. In connection with their escape there went relief, rehabilitation, colonization, resettlement, and all sorts of human aid required by homeless people at any time, and especially when in flight. To do what was required the Joint Distribution Committee spent $40,000,000; the United Palestine Appeal, $23,676,107; and the National Refugee Service, from 1939 to 1942, the sum of $11,209,178.48, all devoted in some way or other to the rebuilding of Jewish life somewhere, to attempting to recover sanity for those who have too much to remember, to finding a degree of happiness and security for the hounded, to reconstructing lives that have been all but broken.

In all this work money talked. The more the money, the more that could have been said. In the present fifth annual call for funds, the United Jewish Appeal which comprises the above agencies, has not set a quota because no quota could be enough. But an initial sum of $9,100,000 will be allocated. If such a sum for such a purpose is hard to believe, so are the enslavement, confinement in ghettos and camps, and every kind of human havoc within the merciless path of Nazi domination which make this fabulous amount necessary. Fabulous today, that is. Next year it may seem small.

At any rate, in producing the money the Jews in America are privileged and obligated to give but they can not be called heavily burdened. As yet it is blasphemous to talk of sacrifices made by Jews here for Jews in the hard-pressed parts of Europe where murder rules. What they have given and what they have done may some day seem like a drop in the bucket. Let them keep in reserve the bigger words like "sacrifice" for the times that lie ahead. f.f.c.

Anti-Semitism: Norway

By Haakon Lie, Secretary, Executive Board Of The Trade Unions Of Norway, In The Nation

In the minds of my people the attack on our Jewish compatriots is the cruelest thing that ever happened in our country. For Norwegians it has always been a matter of course that all people had the right to enjoy the freedom we so jealously guarded. We never had a race problem. That is why the Quisling attempt to create a problem met with such instant protest, and why the atrocities which followed have provoked the deepest feelings of bitterness, hatred, and sorrow.

As long as the Nazis still hoped to conciliate us, they paid head to the protests and forbade the local Quislings to proceed with their plans. But when they understood that Norwegians refused to take part in the "New Order," an open fight broke out, and the Jews, as always, became the chief scapegoats.

From the time Quisling was made Minister President in February, 1942, things went worse for the Jews. A new decree was issued which denied them the right to remain in Norway. We didn't take this too seriously because we didn't see how it could be carried out. But soon we learned. Quisling, wishing to give his regime the semblance of legality, called a National Assembly to which were invited representatives of the various industrial and commercial organizations, among them the Nazi-controlled trade unions. The plan failed completely because the workers resigned in a body. This action, organized by our underground leadership, was a high spot in our movement of resistance. The prestige of the Germans received a serious blow, and they now had to find other ways and other agents.

Shortly after this affair an incident occurred near the Swedish border. A Norwegian who was helping two Jews escape shot a Quisling border policeman. This was used as a pretext for a systematic attack directed against the whole Jewish population. A decree ordering the confiscation of all property belonging to Jews was followed by an order to arrest all Jewish men and boys over fifteen years of age. Eight hundred were sent to concentration camps, and Jewish families were robbed of their clothing, their jewelry, even their wedding rings. The climax was reached on November 26, when 1,000 Jewish men, women, and children were herded aboard a 9,000-ton ship bound for Poland. These Norwegians will never again see their homeland.

Try as they would, the people of Oslo were unable to stop the deportation of their countrymen. Crowds gathered at the barriers of the pier—the police had to block off the whole district. The police showed their sympathy, but they could not disobey orders.

Norwegian church organizations and Norwegians individually have protested against these horrors. But anyone who signs a letter or a declaration does so at the risk of his freedom, if not of his life. More than one Norwegian has in this way signed his own death sentence. The Nazi terror, however, only renews our will to fight. "A people conquered but not vanquished is the victor."

mented. "In days when America faced a dual menace of internal tension and Nazi propaganda efforts, a comprehensive program of education for children, youth and adults has been developed to promote good will and mutual respect among racial, national and religious groups comprising the nation."

A generation ago, Dr. Johnson added, the American high school, college and church school textbooks included a considerable number of ideas conducive to intolerance. Pictures and texts, he said, often perpetuated the notions of the superiority of one race over another and gave biased interpretations of history and group relations.

While a few of these older books are still being used in certain sections of the country, Dr. Johnson declared, most of the offensive passages have been removed. Parallel with these developments, he explained, the new textbooks are increasingly directing the attention of students to the true meaning of democracy, to the composite nature of the people of the United States, to the new findings of social scientists that all groups are natively equal and are interdependent, and to the building of appreciation among culture groups.

As the next step, the educators in charge of this program are sponsoring new teaching and classroom materials in which the subject of intolerance is handled constructively. New concepts of citizenship and group relationships are included in the textbook materials and are being adopted in American schools.

"The Jews permitted to live in Cracow must reside within the specified section. Jews who leave this section without permission are liable to a fine according to the ordinance of October 15, 1941. A similar fine will be paid by those who knowingly give shelter to such Jews contrary to the above regulations."

Prior to this ordinance, the Jewish population was entirely forbidden to live in the city of Cracow. The several thousand Jews who had secured special permits from the occupation authorities to live in the city were restricted to Podgorze, a section in the suburbs of Cracow. The above ordinance established the boundaries of the ghetto and confined the Jews strictly within those boundaries, closely following the pattern of the Lodz and Warsaw ghettoes.

The underground report on the situation in Cracow continues:

The execution of the Nazi plan began with the removal of the Jews. The recent Jewish population of Cracow numbered approximately 17,000. Several thousand Jewish artisans were transferred to Kobierzyn, near Cracow. The remainder of the Jewish population was liquidated after the Lublin pattern. The ghetto was surrounded by SS detachments, and the inhabitants were forbidden to go into the streets or to come near the windows under threat of immediate death. In the ensuing days, the Jews were driven out in groups of two thousand daily, crowded into trucks and on rafts along the Wisla, and taken away, probably to the concentration camp in Belzec, which is tantamount to certain death.

CHURCH OPPOSES NAZIS ON BEHALF OF JEWS

that we shall cast out from our midst. Shame upon us if we ever allow ourselves to fall victims to it."

The Dutch churches have fought anti-Jewish persecution with uncompromising doggedness. The Essener National Zeitung, Hermann Goering's publication, is authority for the statement that Netherlands church leaders are the "fiercest enemies of the New Order in Europe."

The beginning of the persecution of Jews in Holland in the Autumn of 1940 meant the beginning, also, of protests by the Dutch churches. When the first anti-Jewish regulations were imposed, a vigorous protest was read in the churches on Oct. 27, 1940, urging the preservation of spiritual liberty. In September, 1941, the General Synod of the Dutch Reformed Church renewed its defiance of the German authorities and reiterated its firm stand against the mistreatment of Jews.
